

The Daily Courant.

Monday, November 15. 1714.

From the Leiden Gazette, dated Nov. 20.

Constantinople, October 6.

ON the 1st of this Month the King of Sweden departed from Demir-Toca to return to his Estates through Transylvania and the Emperor's Hereditary Countries. Before his Majesty went away the Grand Signior sent him a magnificent Present, consisting of 11 very fine Horses richly accoutred, a Sword adorned with Diamonds, and a sumptuous Tent. 'Tis assured that the Captain-Bassa, or Admiral of our Fleet, has given Leave to the Corsairs of Dulcigno to fall upon the Venetian Ships by way of Reprisal, in order to find Occasion thereby to come to a Rupture with that State: And this Project will according to all Appearance break out in a little time, unless the Peace lately concluded between the Emperor and France makes some Alteration in it. Five Men of War built in the Black-Sea are arrived here, and they are at work in our Arsenal on two more: Inasmuch, that with 10 Merchant-Ships of 50 Guns each, which are equipping with all Diligence, the Grand Signior will be able to put a Fleet to Sea of 50 Men of War and 30 Gallies. And as all the Arrears of his Highness's Troops were on the 2d Instant paid off, and the Aga of the Janisaries ordered at the same time to recruit his Infantry to 40000 Men, many look upon these Preparations as a certain Prestage of an approaching Rupture with some Potentate of Europe.

From the Gazette a la Main, dated Nov. 17.

Malta, Oct. 12. The Grand Master is very jealous of the warlike Preparations which the Turks are making, and takes all possible Measures to put himself into a State of Defence, in case they should come to attack him. For this cause he has sent to the Courts of all the Catholick Princes, to have their Succours in case of Necessity, and omits nothing to render ineffectual the Efforts of those Infidels. To this purpose he has made double Retrenchments in the Places of least Strength, and such as are most exposed, with Courtains behind them to place Artillery upon. The Ships of the Order have taken within six Weeks past eight Turkish Ships, two Algerines, and three Tripolines: The Turks and Moors that were on board them were distributed in our Gallies.

Venice, Oct. 27. Through the uneasiness the Senate are in upon the great Armament the Turks are making, they cause great Diligence to be used in putting the Gallies into a Condition to sail to the Morea. A Provéditore for the Sea goes with them, and a great Sum of Money will be put on board to pay the Garrisons. Ships are also equipping to take the Troops on board who come from the Terra Firma.

Paris, Nov. 14. The Commandeurs and Knights of Malta have received repeated Orders from the Grand Master to return to him, and attend their Duty in the Defence of the Island, lest the great Preparation the Turks are making should be designed against them; and many Ingenieurs of diverse Nations prepare to go with them. 'Tis said the Chevalier de Bouillon has quitted the Cross of Knight, not having made his Caravane.

From the Hague Courant, dated Nov. 21.

Vienna, Nov. 7. A fine Medal is struck here upon the Peace concluded at Baden. On one side there is the City Baden, with Mars sitting disarmed by the River Limmat, which runs by that Town, washing off his black Stains of Blood; and above appears an Angel with an Olive-Branch, and the Arms of the City in his Hand, with these Words, Ha tandem ad Thronum fissus Mars abluat Ensem: At length the weary Mars hath in these Baths washed off his Stains of Blood. On the other side is the Emperour with the Roman Empire behind him, kneeling before an Altar, upon which Altar stands an Incense-pot with Fire, into which his Majesty sprinkles Frankincense, and in the Perspective are peaceful Corn-Fields, the Words Exsultemus gratias Agamus. The Emperor and Empire make their Thanksgiving, at the Bottom stand these Words, Imperio Romano. In argo Via CLaVio.

Hague, Nov. 20. Upon the Notification which the King of Spain has made to the States-General of his Marriage with the Princess of Parma, their High-Mightinesses have by a Letter Missive congratulated his Majesty thereupon. 'Tis said that King's Ambassador, the Duke d' Ossuna, will in a short time depart for France, having already taken Passports for his Baggage. Yesterday Noon an Express from Antwerp came in with Letters to the Lords of the Government, and the same Evening the British Minister, Lieutenant-General Cadogan, arrived here; he had that Night and again this Morning Conferences with some Lords of the State.

Hague, Nov. 20. The Number of those who compose the Body of the Nobles of Holland, commonly called the Ridderschap, being reduced to Five, those Lords made a Promotion last Friday of four new ones; who are, the Heer van Dorp, Lord of Maesdam and Countesselour in the Court of Holland; the Heer Boerselaer, Lord of Nieuwveen and Deputy for the Nobility to the Admiralty of Amsterdam; Count de Wassenaar Obdam, Deputy to the Council of State; and the Heer Schagen, Lord of Goudrian, Deputy to the Chamber of Accounts; and the same Day they took their Places in the Assembly of the States of Holland, into which they were introduced by the Earl of Albemarle. Divers others, who by their Birth had hopes to have a Share in this Promotion, are disappointed; and there is little Appearance that another will be soon made; for the greater the Number of the Nobility, the less Concurrence there is among them, and the fewer Places comes to each Man's Share. We are assured that the States of Holland, who separated on Saturday, had deliberated upon the sending an extraordinary Ambassador to England, which was carried in the Affirmative. The preceeding Assembly did likewise agree upon sending a Minister to Brunswick, but did not Name the Persons to be sent to either Place.

The Heers vanderDussen and the Count deRechteren have since their Arrival from Antwerp had divers Conferences with the States-General and the Council of State. 'Tis said they have represented, that Count Koningseck will not abate any thing of his first Plan of the Barrier before the States have formed a new one more agreeing to it; but as the States have not yet discovered any Disposition towards that, it seems as if the Success of that Negotiation will depend upon what Mr. Stanhope will be able to do at Vienna.

Baron Schleanitz, the Czar's Minister, is gone to Brunswick; and M. Dalweig, Minister of Hesse-Cassel, is gone to Paris, pretending to carry there only 6 or 8 Weeks, and then go over into England.

London,

London, November 15.

A few Days since the Marquis de Rochefort was admitted to Audience of the King, being introduced by the Lord Townshend, and delivered a Letter from all the Thirteen Cantons of Switzerland to Congratulate his Majesty upon his Accession to the Throne, which his Majesty received very graciously. This Concurrence of the whole Helvetic Body is very remarkable, because the Catholick Cantons did not acknowledge either King William or Queen Anne.
